The President grasped the idea immediately, and took his visitors to see the map of the Panama canal, which hangs in teh hall of the executive offices. "Such an exposition as you propose," he said, "if it included such edu-

Committees will be ap-pointed in each of the States to arrange exhibitions, and it is hoped to make the exposition attractive enough to start a feeling in this country that will eventually turn the tide of American travel in some measure at least from Europe to the United States.

E. S. Martin, now superintendent of the department of recreation in Colum-bus, Ohio, will be recommanded and quite probably selected as the new superintendent of the Washington playgrounds.

Arthur C. Moses, president of the Playgrounds Association, said today that by necessity an out-of-town man would be recommended by the executive committee to the board of directors for the office of Director of Playgrounds.

Mr. Moses would not commit himself as to what he thought the directors would do with the recommendation of the committee. It is believed, however, that the directors will indorse the committee's action.

Elks to Be Hosts to One Thousand Orphans

One thousand of the little orphans of the District will have one of the happiest days of their lives on Monday next, when, as the guests of the local lodge of Elka, they will journey to Marshall Hall for an all-day outing. The excursion is an annual custom of the Washington Elks, and this year hundreds of the lodge members and their families are to join in the fun.

Hugh F. Harvey, chairman of the committee which has the outing in charge, has announced that the regular schedule of the boats from the Seventh street wharves will be followed, with the children going down on the 10 o'clock boat. The excursion is given in aid of the charity fund of the organization, which is somewhat depleted, owing to the many demands of the past winter.

NEW YORK, June 15.—There was considerable action in the market in the opening hours, gradually quieting as the session advanced to the same old trading field of action, with fractional profits sufficient inducement for the quick changing of transactions.

At the opening Steel common stood out in the transactions clearly and with a splendid show of strength, even while the rest of the list was showing evidence of weakness.

Most of the iron papers sent out information of an encouraging character regarding business. The Iron Age said:

Senator Kenyon enquired why Haron had not prosecuted criminally as well as civilly.

Senator Pomerene asked if the Government were now frightened at its own victories. He urged, without attacking the Attorney General, that his resolution should be passed directing the Attorney General to begin prosecutions against the individual defendants in "Statutes should be enforced, or they should be repealed. The poor and lowly are not above the law, and the rich and the strong in combination ought not to be permitted to violate it with impunity.

"No statute, than the Sherman antitrust law, was ever more plainly writ-ten or more easily understood by those who want to understand it. The ordinary man understand it. The or-dinary man understands that it is un-lawful to monopolize, or combine to monopolize, any part of the commerce between the States, or with foreign nations

"It only becomes obscure when it is to be applied to vast combinations of wealth which are made to drive competitors out of business. And with all due respect it seems that lawyers have doubts as to what this statute means in proportion to the sizes of the fees they receive. Any hundred-dollar country lawyer can tell what this law means. It takes a hundred-thousand-dollar lawyer to point out ways to evade its provisions.

"The vast corporations and their learned counsel do not attempt to square their conduct with the law, but to warp the law in order to conform it to their business."

Senator Pomerene gave a history of the Standard Oil and the Tobacco trusts and their flagrant violations of the law.

What disposition have they evinced to comply with the order of the court? The history of the Standard Oil Company and its allied interests in Ohio and western Pennsylvania has been a continuous record on their behalf and on behalf of their officers, including John D. Rockefeller, to monopolize the oil business and to destroy, by means fair or foul, where he could not buy out or foul, where he could not buy out his competitors at his own price. ture of the law. His office was created by Congress. He is required to perform such duties as Congress sees fit to demand of him. In this resolution it is proposed to declare that in the judgment of Congress he ought to begin these criminal proceedings and prose-

NELSON DECLARES TAFT IS INVADING CONGRESS' RIGHTS

ing to Evade Constitution In Reciprocity Pact.

President Taft was charged on the floor of the Senate this afternoon with invading the rights of Congress in the negotiation of the reciprocity agreement. The charge was made by Senator Nelson of Minnesota, who declared the action of the President was both unconstitutional and "utterly unwarranted.

Senator Nelson charged that the President was seeking to evade the treaty-making provision of the Constitution. He said the action was without precedent. He maintained that the President was trying to get a treaty or agreement with a foreign country put through by a majority vote instead of a two-thirds vote, and that this was unlawful.

Senator Nelson attacked the agreement on the ground it was unfair to the farmers, but the argument he made against the alleged unlawful course of the President was the most striking part of his remarks. part of his remarks.
